

Dear Guest,

The wine list at Sixteen is a recollection of the "Classic Wine Regions" both Old World and New.

Realizing the immense opportunity it is for us to be able to accompany you on your special occasion, we have maintained a unique selection that offers all price points without compromising quality.

Because wine is an agricultural commodity, special attention has been paid in this selection to producers who also work and respect the vineyard across the year and are in close contact with the raw material.

Whether it is Champagne, Bordeaux, California or a delicate Burgundy, we hope you will enjoy something truly remarkable today.

*Parag Lalit

SPARKLING WINES OF THE WORLD

The modern wine enthusiast has the possibility of savouring sparkling wines from all parts of the world. Although there are many styles, the best sparkling wine regions share a few traits in common. These wines are often produced in marginal climates where it is difficult to ripen the grapes at all. However, when grapes do ripen in these challenging conditions, they produce wines of precision, finesse and longevity.

Although France continues to produce some of the most sought after sparkling wines on the planet, many other European countries as well as New World Countries are striving for excellence.

Our sparkling wine section is greatly focused on Champagne. This collection has some classic producers that were responsible for developing Champagne as a brand as well as small houses that have developed cult following, producing minuscule quantities.

GERMANY

The Romans were responsible for planting the vineyards here. No easy task because it remains the coldest wine producing nation in the world. Although Riesling continues to be the most significant grape, warmer pockets of viticulture have been identified across its regions producing a multitude of styles, both white and red. Mostly dedicated to Riesling and Pinot Noir, also known as Spätburgunder, our selection portrays a balance between recent and older examples vintages. Prost!

FRANCE

The reputation of France as the most desired wine region is not a recent phenomenon. Within short distances, great differences in terroir are to be found. This uniqueness coupled with a staunch tradition of showcasing specificity of site are some of the factors that make France the iconic region that it is.

Our selections are a depiction of this diversity. Santé!

ITALY

Italy's viticultural history is one of the oldest in the world and continues to inspire and influence modern winemaking. From the very long lived wines of Barolo and Barbaresco, dubbed "the king of wines and the wine of kings" to the contemporary Sangiovese and Cabernet Sauvignon based "Super Tuscans". The country also displays generous grapes of the South such as Aglianico and Nero d'Avola, but also lean and precise styles in the North. An extremely diverse landscape that can challenge the most savvy wine connoisseur.

Although, red wine production remains of primary interest to the country, an increasing number of high quality whites and "orange wines" traditionally and historically being produced in regions such as Piedmont, Trentino Alto-Adige, Friuli Venezia Giulia, Campania and Sicily. These areas are finally being recognized for their profundity and can embellish the most complex meal.

SPAIN

The Phoenicians, involved in maritime commerce between the Middle East and the Iberian Peninsula were the first to bring noteworthy grape varieties that became the face of modern viticulture in this country. The Romans remain the first to produce wine from these grapes.

The wine trade became a secondary concern to the Moorish empire that reigned over the country for almost 800 years. Religious practises led to a ban of alcohol for much of the time. Ironically the term "alcohol" takes its origins from the Arabic word "Al-Kuhul" referring to a cosmetic powder that was fined with distillation.

Spain, one of the most powerful imperial powers benefited from an international demand for their wines. For a long time, their colonies were forced not to produce any wines in order to support the rapidly expanding Spanish wine market.

Currently the world's 3rd largest producer of wine, it takes full advantage of its distinct soil types and savoir-faire that has been built over centuries of strict tradition.

UNITED STATES

The U.S. has distinguished themselves as one of the more avant-garde winemaking countries in the world. Our country has developed a framework that tends to be quite flexible offering a multitude of styles and grapes while still incorporating European savoir faire.

Greatly focused on Cabernet Sauvignon, Pinot Noir and Chardonnay our selection also sheds light on many other unique grapes that paint the viticultural landscape of this nation.
